WHEELING, APRIL 27, 1892.

Republican State Convention!

At a meeting of the State Central Committee, held at the city of Parkersburg, on February 23, 1892, it was ordered that a State Convention be held at the city of Martinsburg, on THURSDAY, the 4th day of May, 1892, to elect four (4) delegates-at-large and four (4) Alternates-at-Large to the Republican National Convention, to be held at the city of Minneapolis, Minnesota, on Tuesday, the 7th day of June, 1892. No nominate candidates to be supported for the offices of President and Vice-President of the United States; and also, in view of the change in the arrangement of the several Senatorial districts of this State, to elect members of the State Republican Central Committee, consisting of one person from each Senatorial district.

The Executive Committee of each county is requested to take early steps to secure each county representation in said State Convention, as well as in the Congressional District Conventions to elect district delegates and alternates to said National Convention, and it is recommended that each county elect one delegate to said State Convention for each one hundred (100) votes or fraction thereof greater than fifty (50) cast therein for President Harrison in 1888. The co-operation is desired of all Republican voters and all other voters who favor the policy of Protection to American laborers, farmers and manufacturers, the policy of Reciprocity, a sound currency, the cause of good government in the Nation, State and County, who favor economy and reform in the State government of West Virginia and the several public institutions thereof.

The Congressional District Conventions above referred to will be held as follows: First district at Clarksburg, on May 6; Second district at Martinsburg, on May 8; Third district at Hinton, on May 8; Fourth district at Point Pleasant, on April 29.

AUGUSTUS POLLACK, Chairman, mr29
WM. M. O. DAWSON, Secretary.

FIRST CONGRESSIONAL District Convention.

It is ordered that a District Convention of Republicans, and all others who favor the policy of Protection to American laborers, farmers and manufacturers and a sound currency, shall be held at Clarksburg, May 6, 1892, at 12 o'clock noon, for the purpose of choosing two delegates and two alternates to represent the First Congressional District in the National Republican Convention to be held in the city of Minneapolis, in the State of Minnesota, on the 7th day of June, 1892, for the purpose of nominating candidates for President and Vice-President, to be voted for at the next National election; and for transacting such other business as may be brought before said convention. The Executive Committee of each county is requested to take early steps to have each county represented at said Convention. It is recommended that each county select one delegate for each one hundred (100) votes or fraction over fifty (50) cast therein for President Harrison in 1888.

W. E. STATHERS, Chairman, J. C. BRADY, Secretary.

THE approaching contest is rendered especially important by reason of the industrial and financial policies of the Government being at stake. The popular decision on these issues is of great moment and will be of far-reaching consequence.—James G. Blaine.

West Virginia All Right.

While Democratic papers are raising the calamity cry on account of the McKinley tariff, West Virginia goes right ahead developing her resources, and capitalists of all parties continue to establish protected industries in the state that give employment to protected labor. It will be "up-hill" work for the Democratic party to convince the people of West Virginia this year that Protection is a monstrous wrong. It will take more than Democratic theory to convince the people of West Virginia that Protection is retarding the industrial progress of the state, and that her protected coal and lumber industries are not being rapidly developed.

It will require more than the eloquence of all the Free Trade orators to make the people of West Virginia believe that railroads are not being built into new territory containing millions of undeveloped wealth—"raw material" that is protected by a Republican tariff; that mines of protected coal are not being opened; that the protected lumber business is not increasing to enormous proportions; that new towns dependent upon protected industries are not springing up, and old ones are not extending their limits to accommodate increasing populations; that new comers are not seeking homes in the state; that the farmers are not finding, by reason of all this, an increased demand for their products at their very doors.

West Virginia is doing very well, thank you, and it is not a favorable year for the Free Trade calamity howlers.

Mr. Enloe's Temper.

Congressman Enloe, one of the chief prosecutors in the Raun investigation, did not strengthen the Democratic effort to besmear the administration of the pension bureau by his attempted personal assault on Commissioner Raun.

The scene in the committee room yesterday was disgraceful, to say the least, and was made so by Mr. Enloe himself. General Raun acted with dignity throughout, while the congressman appeared to forget that he was among gentlemen.

Displays of temper on the part of the Democratic members of the committee have been frequent during the progress of the "investigation" and tend to confirm statements made by other Democrats, that the inquiry has utterly failed of its purpose.

Naturally, this fact irritates the gentlemen who have strained themselves to find something crooked about Gen. Raun's management of the pension office, but they should not permit themselves to entirely lose their presence of mind on account of it. They should bear their disappointment like men.

"The Merits of the Case."

The esteemed Register, in commenting on the INTELLIGENCER's remarks concerning the steal of a seat in Congress by the Hill faction of the Democratic house against the protests of the Cleveland faction, says:

We do not intend to discuss the merits of the case. Rockwell had the certificate of election and was seated. The evidence subsequently submitted was not sufficient in the estimation of Congress to warrant his being ousted in favor of Noyes, though the Democrats were a long way from needing his vote. The strange thing about it is that the INTELLIGENCER should utter at this time the virtuous sentiment above quoted, when but a short time ago it was publishing over Hiram Reed's open plunder of fourteen seats in order to give his party a "working" majority in the Illinois House of Representatives.

"Why not 'discuss the merits of the case'?" Is the Register afraid to discuss them frankly? Everybody knows that the seating of Rockwell was one of the most flagrant outrages ever perpetrated by any party, that it was done at the dictation of David B. Hill, and that honest Democrats denounced the action on the floor of the house. Why should not a Democratic journal discuss "the merits of the case." Surely not because one of the West Virginia Democratic congressmen voted for the steal and the three others dodged the issue?

When the INTELLIGENCER "jubilated" over the unseating of fourteen Democrats by the last Congress, it rejoiced because justice had been done after a "discussion of the merits of the cases." Particularly is this true regarding the two West Virginia cases disposed of. The "merits" of those cases were so clearly in favor of the Republican contestants that a child could see them and every honest man could appreciate them. The two sitting Democratic members had obtained their certificates through an infamous trick in one instance, and a bold burglary in another instance. The Register knows that this is true. The men implicated in the outrages do not deny them.

The Register should tell the whole truth about the contested cases of the last Congress. While recalling the fact that fourteen of them were decided in favor of the Republicans, it should not forget to remind its readers that a very large proportion of them were decided in favor of Democrats. The Register has persistently suppressed this fact, deluded, perhaps, by the thought that its readers can be deceived into thinking that a Republican Congress did not decide the cases "on their merits."

A New Religion.

It is proposed by some theorists to establish a new and strange religion, which has for its purpose the complete physical, mental and moral purification of coming generations. It is a big undertaking, but the promoters propose to give it a practical trial.

A successful carrying out of the tenets of the new faith practically involves, necessarily, the creation, or rather the establishment of a new people in a new world, and this also the exponents of the doctrine propose to do, by "the formation of a colony of children of unknown parentage in a locality far removed from world companionship, who will be raised to a rigidly pure life physically and morally, and whose descendants will be the most perfect types of mankind in existence."

It is not strange that this new faith, whose leading exponent is the famous Dr. Tanner, the faster, should find ready converts, and that already a society numbering many believers has been formed. The scheme of the "Faithists," as they call themselves, is an attractive one so far as outlined above, but there are some things in the creed that are not attractive. For instance, the belief that woman is to be the coming power of the earth and the Caucasian is to be exterminated or absorbed by the Ethiopian race. The world will not be quick to accept this doctrine, however it may be attracted by the colony plan. Meantime the success or failure of the plan to purify the race and erect an earthly paradise will be awaited with interest.

HERR Most should be invited to emigrate to Europe, where people of his peculiar views are just now enjoying a boom. There is no need in America for a man who utters such sentiments as these: "I am a revolutionist; and a believer in the doctrine of force" because I know history. I know that no ruling class has yet been driven from power without bloodshed. I know it must come, and I ask you workmen to prepare for the catastrophe which cannot be avoided." Most isn't a working-man and has never earned the right to assume the leadership of workmen. The laboring classes of the United States who earn their living honestly by the sweat of their faces are not of the Most stripe.

SENATOR QUAY has really "come in out of the wet." In an interview published in the Pittsburgh Commercial Gazette he comes out squarely for President Harrison and says: "There is no other man of national scope who has been mentioned who can give the ticket the strength the President can." The unity of feeling among Republicans of the entire country on this point augurs well for success in November.

The logic of the situation on the Democratic side seems to be that Gorman's nomination would unite the Hill and Cleveland factions. But what effect would it have on the decent element of the Democracy, which could not stomach the crowd of plug uglies with whom Gorman surrounds himself?

There is poor prospect that the anarchists now on trial in Paris will be convicted, although they have publicly boasted of their deeds. What can be expected in view of the fact that the jury is terrorized by threats that their own lives will be forfeited if they find a verdict of guilty? These are critical times in the French republic.

With the abolition of the iniquitous sweating system in New York by an act of the legislature, one of the worst evils with which the laboring classes of the metropolis have had to contend will be done away with. The law was passed through the efforts of the labor unions of the state.

NATURALLY the slow progress made in getting a jury for the trial of Dr. Garrison causes general discussion of the desirability of doing away with the expensive and cumbersome jury system. A trial commission, properly constituted, would save several days and many dollars in this instance.

If there is one public position which should be filled with extreme care, it is that of the new assessors. The cut and dried manner in which Democratic caucus nominations were put through by Council last night does not indicate that the councilmen appreciate the importance of this office.

The suggestion is made that Thomas B. Reed and Jeremiah Rusk be made the Republican candidates for President and Vice President respectively. With "Tom and Jerry" at the head of the ticket there might be a chance for Republican success even in Kentucky.

BREAKFAST BUDGET.

An electrical finger for surgical uses has recently been invented. A bulb, attached to a long probe, is attached to a finger stall. The bulb is double and the outer skin is flexible. The two layers are connected with opposite poles of the battery, and wires connect the inner layer with the finger tip. Pressure at any point closes the circuit and the electrical current is transmitted to a corresponding point on the finger. The surgeon has thus a means of feeling and measuring things which he can neither see nor reach by ordinary means.

Premier di Rudini's flour tax is likely to make trouble in Italy. The Italian peasant probably consumes more flour than the peasant of any other European country, because the manufacture of flour into various forms of macaroni is common in all the poorer Italian households. Italians are particularly ingenious also in their treatment of dough, which they make into many curious and appetizing forms.

The most wonderful woodpile on record is owned by a man in Oxford county, Mo. In the pile of eight cords, all cut from one piece of forest, are no fewer than twenty different kinds of wood, viz: white birch, yellow birch, white maple, rock maple, white ash, brown ash, black cherry, wild cherry, apple tree, elder, beech, moosewood, willow, fir, dogwood, spruce, sugar plum, elm, poplar and hemlock.

The Topeka capital reports a handsome decrease in mortgage indebtedness in nearly half of the 106 counties in Kansas. The estimated net reduction of such indebtedness for March for all Kansas is nearly $1,000,000. Farmers hold fifteen per cent of the stock in 300 banks, and half the deposits in the savings banks of the state are made by farmers.

The gulf of Georgia is reported to be almost choked with large schools of herring. The Washington and British Columbia fishermen are catching the fish by the ton with no trouble whatever, and are making good money by backing them for shipment east.

The volcano of Kiluaea is very active at present. The cavity produced by the last breakdown has not filled up, but there is an active lake 200 or 300 feet below the general level of the floor and a quarter of a mile in diameter.

The average number of letters written per head of the population is: England and Wales, 40; Scotland, 30; Ireland, 16; United States, 21; France, 15; Germany, 13, and Italy, 7.

Ladies' Home Journal.

About none of the magazines of this month seems there to be such a freshness of spring time as the May Ladies' Home Journal goes out to its hundreds of thousands of readers laden with song, story, and a wealth of good material. The number opens with "A Day in Patti's Castle," written by Florence Wilson, a young Englishwoman, who obtained permission from the famous diva to describe minutely the daily life at Craig-y-Nos, Patti's castle in Wales. This article is accompanied by drawings and engravings taken from photographs made specially for the Journal by Madame Patti herself. Mrs. John Wanamaker gives a strong paper on "The Patient Work of Motherhood." Mrs. William Ewart Gladstone contributes her second article, "Hints from a Mother's Life," and Miss V. Stuart Mosby furnishes an interesting sketch, with portrait, of the wife of ex-Senator Ingalls. To enumerate all the good things would be to give a complete table of contents of this one of the best numbers of the Journal yet issued. Published by the Curtis Publishing Company of Philadelphia, for ten cents per number and one dollar per year.

PERSONAL POINTS.

Referring to the thin drinks served at the dinners of the late Empress Augusta, and to his own dislike for them, Prince Bismarck said to some friend not long ago: "Fortunately the sergeants who served at tables were knowing lads, especially a tall artillery fellow. When he looked at me I winked with the right eye; he winked back with the left, and I knew that a stiff cognac would be poured into my glass."

The late Alexander Mackenzie, ex-premier of Canada, had none of the airs too common with those who are "drest in a little brief authority." It is related of him while in office he often received callers in his shirt sleeves, and the workmen had as much attention from him as the office-holders. Like Mr. Blake, he refused the decoration of knighthood.

The Kaiser, who has been married nine, or nearly ten, years, is the father of seven children, and gossips in the confidence of the royal head nurse intimate that an eighth will make its appearance along with June roses. The succession to the throne is tolerably well assured.

The late Governor Hartranft, of Pennsylvania, had a genealogical hobby, and nothing pleased him so much as finding a new link that connected him with his ancestor, Caspar Schwenkfeld, the Silesian nobleman, who settled in Montgomery county, Pa., in 1734.

The late Roswell Smith, the projector of the Century Dictionary, was the nephew of the Smith who was the author of Smith's Grammar, a popular school book a generation ago.

Those who have observed the prince of Wales say that one of the peculiarities that stick to him is that of reddening about the cheeks and forehead when suddenly vexed.

George Peabody left a fund of $750,000 with which to build tenements for the poor. It is now more than $5,000,000, and only thirty years have passed.

WALT WHITMAN'S LAST POEM.

Death's Valley.
Harper's Magazine for April.
(To accompany a picture: by request.)
Nay, do not dream, designer dark.
Thou hast portray'd or hit thy theme entire:
I, hovering of late by this dark valley, by its confines, having glimpses of it.
Here enter lists with thee, claiming my right to make a symbol too.

For I have seen many wounded soldiers die,
And dead suffering—have seen their lives pass
off with smiles;
And I have watch'd the death-hours of the old;
And seen the infant die;
The rich, with all his nurses and his doctors;
And then the poor, in meagerness and poverty;
And I myself for long, O Death, have breathed my very breath.

Amid the nearness and the silent thought of thee.
And out of these and thee,
I make a scene, a song, brief (not fear of thee,
Nor gloom's ravines, nor bleak, nor dark—for I do not fear thee).
Nor celebrate the struggle, or contortion, or hard-fought climax of it.
Of the broad blessed light and perfect air, with meadows, rippling tides, and trees, and flowers, and crags,
And the low hum of living breeze—and in the midst God's beautiful eternal right hand,
Thou, holiest minister of Heaven—thee, envoy,
teacher, guide at last of all.
Rich, lord, loosener of the structure-knot call'd
Life,
Sweet, peaceful, welcome death.

The Doctors Are Gullible.

Grave mistakes are made by physicians in treating heart disease. The rate of sudden deaths is daily increasing. Hundreds become victims of the ignorance of physicians in the treatment of this disease. One in four persons has a diseased heart. Shortness of breath, palpitation and fluttering, irregular pulse, choking sensation, asthmatic breathing, pain or tenderness in side, shoulder or arm, weak or hungry spells, are symptoms of heart disease. Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is the only reliable remedy. Thousands testify to its wonderful cures. Books free. Sold by Logan Drug Co.
